

CHAPTER 1

"Hey, your hands are very cold!" Maya said.

Eva couldn't believe what she had in her hands.

"So...sorry..."

'It's huge!' Eve thought. Bigger than anything she's ever seen before. The biggest penis she had seen!. But there it was, between her hands, the end of it dangling between her fingers.

"But... it's... it's very big..." Eva stammered.

"Yes... believe me, I know..." Maya replied.

"And... It's heavy... It's very heavy"

"Yes... I know that too..."

"And...the others...are they the same size?"

"well more or less"

"All of them??"

"Yes!... some are bigger than others, but, broadly speaking, yes. They are almost the same!"

Maya was beginning to feel uncomfortable

"It's... impressive..." Eva said, visibly shocked. Her heart was beating hard, she was in a cold sweat, and her eyes were wide open. Maya noticed how excited Eva was, which made her nervous too.

"Well, that's all folks... it's over." Maya said, removing the large penis from her hands, and covering it again with the nightgown. Despite the view being blocked, the shape through the fabric was not, which made it impossible not to guess that under that nightgown, between each of her multiple legs that surrounded Maya's hip, there was something there that was not very normal.

"And with matching testicles?"

"Eva!!"

"Okay okay.. Excuse me... I'll take it as a yes". She said in a low voice.

"You don't know... how complicated this is for me..." Maya said, more and more sad. "My life is over. I dare not leave the house. My studies, how am I going to go back to university like this?" She covered her face with her hands, very embarrassed.

"Come on, Maya... maybe it's not... so bad... I mean, it could have some advantages" Eva was so shocked that her words barely came out coherently.

"Advantage?? Do you think having this body has any advantages??" She said, raising all of her arms, still awkwardly displaying the rest of her body. With her movement all of her breasts sway through the nightgown. Her pointed nipples were perfectly noticeable through the thin fabric. "Come on, I'm a fucking monster! If I saw someone like me on the street, I would run scared! Have you seen my mother? I give her revulsion! And my father? He can hardly look me at my face... What would happen if one day I dare to go to class?? what do you think they will think about me?"

Maya burst into tears. All her hands covered her face clumsily, trying to dry the tears.

Eva, despite everything that was going through her head, had in front of her her best friend, morally destroyed, crying inconsolably. She put an arm around her shoulder and tried to comfort her.

"Come on, don't cry. You're not a monster for me, for sure!. You are my best friend, I will always be with you. What happened to you, only makes me want to be with you, to help you. Besides, who knows..." Eva sighed "maybe this pandemic gets out of control, and we will finish all mutating. So you would be a normal person"

She tried to make her smile, but she wasn't very successful.

"Sometimes you are a real dumb, you know?..." She said between laughs as she dried her tears.

For a few minutes, Eva's unconditional hug tried to help Maya not feel so weird and alone. But no one asked how Eva felt. Her head right now was on an emotional roller coaster. On one hand, she felt pity and compassion. It hurt her a lot to see her best friend, almost her only true friend, so broken by this situation. Eva had never been very socially active, she had just a few friends, but Maya was right now almost the only one she related to apart from Sam and Rob.

Considered a "geek" by most of the groups at the institute, she hadn't kept relations with friends from that time. And now in college, her introversion doesn't help her build better relationships with more open people. That makes her anxious. But she has always been able to count on Maya.

Ever since all this started, the beginning seemed a long way off, but in a matter of days, it had all rushed by far too quickly. Although the idea that hit most in her brain was... and why not me?? Yes, her mixed emotions were driving her crazy! She felt bad for poor Maya, anger at what had happened, but also emotion, because it was incredible that something like this could happen so close to her surroundings, and excitement... Yes, Eva was attracted to these things, even though she was her little big secret, but above all, she felt envy!

"Why has it happened to her? something like this should have happened to me! I've been wanting something like this since... always!" Eva thought all the time.

So there she was, trying to comfort her friend, after having suffered a "wonderful" mutation, at least in her eyes. She would have loved to have suffered something like this. How unfair life is sometimes. At least one of her deepest fantasies has not only come true, but she is closer than she could have imagined. But how had she gotten into this surreal situation? Looking back, it seemed incredible how things had changed so much in just a few days.